Possibility Of Pulp Mill Suggested For This Area

At a recent Chamber of Commerce executive meeting in the Cardium Room Mr. Buck McDonald suggested that there is a very good possibility that a pulp mill may be erected in this area.

It is said that in original Provincial Insular planning Drayton Valley was suggested as a very likely site for a pulp mill. Six other places in the province were also earmarked for pulp mills at some of which pulp mills have already been erected.

This area has many natural resources, it was pointed out. Gas from this field has been earmarked for domestic use, rather than for foreign export. With the big hydro-electric project now well underway at the Brazeau, cheap and plentiful power would be available. Water would be not a problem, and the vast wooded area to the west of Drayton Valley has some of the province's finest pulpwood stands.

Unless most other areas that abound in wood suitable for pulp this area has an excellent network of roads, connected by the oil and pipeline companies reaching out into the bush, which, with a few connecting roads could reach out far into the heart of the wooded areas and provide cheap and ready access to the pulpwood stands.

Transportation of the raw wood to the mill, which would probably be located in the general vicinity of Drayton Valley, would be no problem with pipelines becoming increasingly more feasible for such operations. In such an operation chips would be taken directly into the lumber stand and the logs would be chipped down in a time where they could be conveyed by pipeline under pressure to the mill.

From the mill where the wood would be reduced to pulp it would be feasible to transport it by pipeline to a railhead many miles away, although if the pipeline were to be established here there would also be a strong possibility of the railroad coming down here from Inverville to serve this area, which they started out to do some back in 1941, before the First World War detached the whole project.

It is felt that pulp from a mill established here would be highly competitive in all markets. At the same time resources available in this area and coupled with the ready accessibility of the wood to the mill would be much in the favor of the millsite here being able to produce pulp at a very cheap rate.

COMBS GET TO TORONTO
Reported by Mike Gormley.

Youthful Orvin Combs has left for Toronto to compete in the Canadian Amateur Boxing Championships held in that city this weekend. The entire Alberta Boxing Team left Nisku Airport at 11:55 P. M., Tuesday evening bound for the Queen City to test their fortunes against the country's best. On his departure, Coach George Fougat of Edmonton said that in his opinion this was possibly the most formidable team that Alberta ever entered into the Dominion Finals.

He had high hopes for his boys and figured on at least a couple of them earning berths on Canadian teams at the British Empire Games to be held this year.

Combs trained hard during the past two weeks and is in excellent condition both physically and mentally for the fight of his life. He did a great deal of sparring with the experienced Walter Kosak who spent last week in Drayton Valley. Kosak, a former Olympic boxer who fought out of the South Side Legion is also trying his luck in the Dominion tournament. Also helping Orvin in his preparatory work was his brother the 1961 Golden Boy winner, Combs. Orvin will be competing in the 135 pound class in the Canadian Classic.

Combs should have a good chance of coming through victorious, although it must be remembered that he will be facing a level of competition quite different from what he has faced before. He is young and strong, carries dynamite in his hands and can take a punch well. He has plenty of desire and with such a combination a

A very fine grade of gravel is being taken out of the pit operated by Mickey Latoury, of Latoury Construction, near Lake Louise. It is a gravel that is in high demand gravel, however and equipment in the pit site crushing the gravel for Latoury. The crusher seen in the picture is a full-crusher, which will take gravel down to 3/4 inch size. It will crush about 3000 yards of gravel at 3/4 inch per day and from 1500 to 2000 yards per day of larger sizes. Latoury expects to have gravel crushed down to 1/2 inch in size. The fact that it is high lead gravel makes it of better quality, and very uniform in size.

HUZAR-MALLOY WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. ALLAN MALLOY

Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, Oym, was the scene of a lovely wedding on August 4, at 10:30 a.m. when Helen Sophie Huzar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Huzar of Oym, Alberta, became the bride of Allan Michael Malloy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Malloy of Leduc, Alberta.

Pink and White Gladioli bunched the altar and white satin ribbons decorated the pews for the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Father Tarnaud.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor length gown of white pease-dot silk appliqued with satin lace and sequins, styled with a fitted bodice with a lace portrait style neckline, long sleeves extended to hip points. The full skirt was caught in a bubble in the back which fell into a soft chapel train. The tiered veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and crystals and her only jewelry was a necklace of cultured pearls a gift of the groom. She chose a cathedral bouquet of daisy pink roses and green ivy.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister Miss Rose Huzar, and bridesmaids were Miss Olga Huzar, sister of the bride and Miss Margaret Hanna of Drayton Valley. They wore identical cocktail gowns of sea foam blue tulle with lace fitted bodices. Their headpieces were of crystal crowns with halo veils. They carried white shasta daisies and ivy. Flower girl, Jeanie Kolus, niece of the bride wore white, chastely lace frock with a white flowered garden headband and carried a basket of pink roses, white shasta daisies and ivy.

The groom's attendants were Mr. Dennis Malloy, brother of the groom, best man and Mr. Wayne Szepanko of Leduc and Mr. Nick Huzar, brother of the bride were ushers. Bobby Albert of Edmonton was ring bearer and carried the rings on a white lace pillow.

Organist was Miss Theresa Rouch and soloist was Miss Kathy Rouch.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Huzar wore a blue two piece lace dress with bone white accessories complemented by a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother chose a beige sheath with rose design, tulle and tulle accessories complemented by a corsage of yellow roses.

The reception was held in Oym Legion Hall and was decorated with pink and white gladioli, streamers and bells. The bride's table was covered with a three-tiered wedding cake with three white and blue candles on each side with streamers and bells in pink and white.

Toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Claude Albert of Drayton Valley, uncle of the groom and was ably responded to by the groom.

Gift recipients were Miss S. Young of Drayton Valley, Miss M. Jensen of Calgary and Miss A. Mauck of Canora. Guest recipients were Mrs. E. Robert, sister of the bride.

The young couple left for a honeymoon trip to Wyoming and Western U.S.A. For travelling the bride changed to a Mini green Italian Kelt suit with black lace design, black accessories and a corsage of orchids complemented the costume. Mr. and Mrs. Malloy will reside in Drayton Valley, Alberta.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. A. Duncan, Blain and Vick of Balzac, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Bray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. C. Albert, Miss M. Young, Miss M. Hanna and Mr. W. Barney of Drayton Valley, Mr. and Mrs. F. Simon of Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mountain, Mr. S. Mountain, Miss A. Pryor, Miss M. Jensen all of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. J. Fournier, Regina Saskatchewan; Mrs. J. Albert, Mrs. W. Malloy of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. J. Palowick, Kinsley, Sask.; Miss M. Bowling News

BOWLING OPEN MONDAY, sponsored by Maple Cemetery.

The Twilight Bowl under the management of Rod Gervais will open in about an hour to another season of bowling next Monday evening, September 2nd. The mixed league competition will start at 7:00 P.M. with another group going at 9:00 P.M. This schedule will continue Monday through Friday throughout the entire season with the exception of the Christmas holidays.

Once again a very lively interest has been shown in the bowling game here. Night now Rod has a jam-packed schedule with limit space time left on the alley. By the way there are still openings for spare bowlers, so if you are not on a regular team and you want to bowl throughout the season you would do well to get in touch with Rod Gervais and get listed as a spare. Frequently as a spare bowler a person can get in more bowling over a season than if he or she was a regular bowler.

Make It A Habit

Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it. — Proverbs 22:6

By Rev. John G. Ferry

Taken From Family Herald

It is a well known fact that creatures in the lower orders of life can be trained to do remarkable things. In the course of weeks, dogs, monkeys and birds, can be conditioned to do the most surprising acts. At a recent Canadian exhibition, visitors watched a chicken pull a hand, which caused a light to go on and feed to drop into a feed tray.

By repetition, the intricate movements of acts from which a reward is achieved become so familiar that a habit is formed. Experiments patiently carried out in the laboratory were used to demonstrate the fact that animals and people, act according to well-established patterns formed from life's beginnings.

There is one school of psychological thought called Behaviorism. It teaches that life is nothing more than a series of elaborate habit patterns. On whether the habit is good or bad will depend our ultimate happiness or success or our failure. We need not go all the way with the behaviorists to see that they have a significant truth. We cannot choose whether we will have habits or not, anywhere than we can choose whether or not to breathe. It is a question of choosing whether our habits shall be good or bad ones.

Habit on the side of right. For young people just starting out in life, there can scarcely be a stronger support to happy and successful living than to establish good habits.

In the book of Proverbs it says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

William Frest Gladstone once advised his son to put habit on the side of right. "For it is always that we are in a bit of mind to be guided by the inclination of the moment," he said. "A minister of the gospel counsels many people in the course of a year, including people in trouble or sorrow of various kinds. Most of these people are victims of bad habits. They establish certain bad habits over most of their lifetime, and expect that we can suddenly bring about a miraculous transformation in their lives."

I am happy to say that these lessons from time to time, habit patterns can be altered by a basic crisis that makes a complete change in a person's character. But it is never easy. How much easier it is to establish bad habits patterns while you are young, than to try and break bad ones later in life. After they have proven to be such a problem to you and to everyone else.

The druggist has a whole list of labelled habit-forming drugs. These are available only on prescription from a doctor. For taking them too frequently you become their slave, and cannot get along without them. This is what we call drug habit, or drug addiction. There are habits which are also a habit essential to our success in life, our happiness, our citizenship. The way we conduct ourselves at mealtime day by day will determine whether we will become well mannered or ill-mannered people. It is a matter of habit. Now we have spent about preparing for examinations in school is more important really than the marks we have achieved, because they belong to the beginning of a habit of study which will carry us far, or let us down. Our attitude toward other people is largely a matter of habit. Abraham Lincoln, once said, "The most truly fine in other folks just about what they're looking for." On motherhood, he said, "Most of us are just happy as we make up our minds to be."

Thought Habits. The Bible says, "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Even our thought habits can affect our work and action habits. Our thought habits may be negative and self-defeating, or positive and optimistic. If we think big, we shall act big. If we are small-minded we shall act in small ways.

J. P. Phillips, a well known Bible translator, has a book entitled, "You Can't Be Small." In the book he points out that we are often guilty of playing God down, of making him less than he is, of doubting his power and effectiveness over our lives. Because of this bad habit, our world is suffering for the want of what only faith in the God of justice and love and mercy can give us.

It is a faith that can move mountains. Putting faith in the

First Baptist Church

Mr. Abina Worley, Bishopian, graduate of Bethel Seminary, St. Paul Minnesota, speaking at First Baptist Church on Sunday, August 26.

Don't ever have to work for his salvation? Is salvation pay for services rendered, or is it a gift of God? He used the experience of his own life to answer the question.

From the national church of the Bible, he was early taught that by prayer, fasting and good works, he would eventually attain a standing before God that would mean his salvation.

After years of frustration in attaining peace, he finally sought out an amiable group meeting in Adams, Alberta, sponsored by the Lutheran Church of England. Here, a young Christian minister, the Rev. J. P. Phillips, engaged him in conversation. The turning point was reached when Abina was directed to Revelation 3:20, to read, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he will be with me, and I will take him into my supper. If any man does not hear my voice, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he will be with me, and I will take him into my supper."

Mr. Worley plans to enter Howard University, Washington, D.C. to work toward a doctorate in philosophy. He intends to return to Ethiopia and take a position as professor in the University

Easyford News

Mr. and Mrs. Hank Fink and family left for holidays on Thursday of this week. Their six year old daughter Sharon who had fallen from a horse and broken her arm was obliged to go with her step in a case. She hopes to have it off by the time school starts.

Just back from a holiday in B.C. and Seattle, are Roman and Dorothy Vowls.

Visitors to Easyford were Ken and Joan Metch and we caught er. Dawn with Joan's parents the Vile Bally and at Deryn. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Booker of Edmonton. The Bookers are old timers of the neighborhood having been married here in the early 30's.

An A.G.T. crew installed a telephone this week for the Garry Hammett. Garry is a battery man for Canada Cities Service Oil Co.

Mr. Casabell, cement contractor of Edmonton put in a basement floor and patio for Mr. and Mrs. Jack Houston. The Houstons from Edmonton bought the former Easyford School and remodelled it into a fine modern home. Which reminds us it is not easy to get Jack's goat. We wonder how Clarence Roy and Donald Oscar managed it.

Wedding

A beautiful wedding took place in the Trinity Lutheran Church, Fairview, Alta. on August 19, when Mrs. A. Schmidt united in marriage Miss Patricia Mary Vandemark of Fairview, Alta., and Mr. Charles Henry Monaghan of Drayton Valley. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lof, Bluey, and the groom is the son of Mr. Francis Monaghan and the late Mrs. Monaghan of Clonsdale, Alta.

The church was decorated with bouquets of gladioli and roses. The organist was Mr. Ivan Mason, Drayton Valley, and during the signing of the register, a duet, "Lord - who at Cana's Wedding Feast," was sung by Mrs. Gomas and Mrs. Maennchen of Fairview.

The bride was resplendent in a gown of silk organza over satin with lace appliques on the skirt front and at the neck-line adorned with seed pearls and sequins. The skirt had a bottle effect back. The veils were short bouffant veil held by a tulle of seed pearls and sequins. Her jewellery was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. Her bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Gill Morris, Fairview, and Miss Margaret Peterson, Edmonton. Maid of honour was Mrs. Gil Mitchell of Calgary. The attendants wore bouquets of blue silk chiffon with full tails and draped necklines. They carried bouquets of silver sprayed carnations. Their hairdresses were short blue veils held with dainty coronas of seed pearls. They wore dainty bachelorette which were a gift from the bride. Flower girls were Misses Kristine Swanson, Fairview, and Marie Goudie, Fairview, and Marie Goudie, Fairview. They wore dresses of pink flannel over tulle and carried baskets of summer flowers.

The groom's attendants were best man, Mr. Gil Mitchell, Calgary, and when Mr. Eric Lof, Bluey, and Mr. Francis Monaghan, Edmonton.

At a reception in the basement of Fairview's Legion Hall, the bride's table was laid in lace and adorned with a three-tiered wedding cake. Mr. James Kofler, Bluey, proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

The bride's mother wore a muted green linen dress with white accessories and yellow roses on corsage.

For her honeymoon trip to Jasper and Banff, the bride wore a blue linen suit with matching silk blouse and black patent accessories. Her corsage was pink roses.

The happy couple will reside in Drayton Valley.

Out-of-town guests came from Edmonton, Drayton Valley, Banff, Calgary, Grande Prairie, Sexsmith, Manning, Hortschlag, McLennan, Claiborn, and Dawson Creek, B.C.

A telegram of congratulations was received from Miss Irene Nowas of Faust, Alberta.

FALLACY OF MAKING MONEY

From The Bulletin, Brooks, Alta.

Real Casquette, leader of the Social Credit party in Quebec, is unilaterally opposed to a tight money policy for Canada. He says that this country is rich in resources, has ample manpower, and all that needs to be done is to have the Bank of Canada supply the money. We have heard similar stories before but, sad to relate, things do not work out that way. Only too many nations have tried out the scheme and got into financial hot water.

In Brazil, for example, there is so much money in circulation that you can get a bag full for a Canadian $5 bill. The mass of the people there are impoverished and living costs have soared. Yet Brazil has an incalculable wealth of natural resources.

Over-spending and getting into debt impoverishes a nation just as it does a family. Creditors and buyers do not want payment in tainted money. Canada has found that out and had to go to the International Monetary Bank to get belted out to the extent of a billion dollars.

One does not need a university education to ascertain facts about money and its creation. On every continent there are nations which have tried out "money making" ideas which have fizzled out.

THE RACE INTO SPACE

From the News-Optimist, North Battleford, Sask.

If the Russians have failed to show imagination in their space program they have made it up in magnificent power. They display this in the mounting two cosmonauts into nearly identical orbits so that they could actually see each other in space was a dramatic answer to the recent successes of the United States. In their space program the Russians have learned a thing or two about public relations. This time Moscow's TV screens were full of the big story. They even televised the spacemen in their space craft.

If the Russians are ahead of the Americans in space technique, as they seem to be, the Americans can still teach them a lesson in public relations. Since the last Russian cosmonaut whirled around the world the Americans have had two men in orbit and have sent aloft a whole trainload of gadgets including Telstar. Perhaps the Americans haven't pushed the big payloads into space that the Russians have, but their contribution to man's knowledge of space has been pretty impressive.

The point is, can the Russians stand the competition which really has just begun. In other words, can they match rocket for rocket along an entire front of exploration? So far the Russians have made great progress in a single direction. Can they give their program width as well as depth?

The answers to those questions will come in the next 10 years when man's conquest of space really gets into high gear. In the meantime, keep a soft chair handy in your living room so you can see and hear the first man land on the moon.

WILL THIS TREND SPREAD?

From the Suburban Times, Jasper Place, Alta.

Two major oil companies have made submissions to Council to have the Service Station by-law changed allowing them to sell things other than oil of an automotive nature. They state in their application that the cost of erecting and operating service stations is such that it is necessary that they dispense goods and services other than those for the motoring public and even though they request this concession for themselves, they are not adverse to all other service stations being allowed the same concessions, providing they have sufficient money behind them to be able to do this.

We can see no objection to them setting up a separate establishment and calling it the Econ or Melhawk Hardware, pegging business and property tax as do the other hardware operating in town, but we feel there is a valid objection in having them operate both types of business on the same premises and only paying business and property taxes on one.

In Jasper places they can, if they wish, operate both businesses 24 hours a day, but it does not seem economical or practical to employ two separate staffs to operate two businesses.

NEW TRADING AREA OPENED

From The Canadian, Canmore, Alta.

Several people have stated that opening the Rogers Pass has opened up a whole new economy. Trucking companies are finding that Calgary is a market place for many of the areas in the mountains that formerly had only Vancouver for an outlet. Businessmen in Alberta are also finding that the interior of B.C. is a completely new market area because of its availability, due to the condition of the highway.

Anyone who has had the opportunity of travelling over Highway No. 1 where it has been built to domination government standards, will admit it is the most scenic and pleasant road to travel in the North American continent. Nothing else can compare to the changing beauty as you coast along over a wide belt of pavement at up to 60 miles per hour. All that is needed is more and better accommodation. When this is provided, more and more people will travel through the Canadian Rockies.

UNEXPLAINED

A very close friend of mine and a teacher for many years, Mr. Colter, who resides in Edmonton, Alberta, told me of this unusual experience he encountered last year.

His wife had given him a letter, addressed to his son in Yellowknife, to be mailed on his way to school one morning. Mr. Colter, forgetful at times like we are all inclined to be, did not mail this letter. This he remembered afterwards, when it was brought to his attention by his wife.

Six months passed when, one day Mr. Colter was confronted by a strange man, whom he had never seen before. He was asked if he was Mr. Colter, and if he had a son in Yellowknife. Mr. Colter said yes, quite puzzled. This man said that when he was packing to leave Winnipeg, his home, he found in a suitcase he had not used for years, a letter addressed to Mr. Bob Colter, a name unknown to him or his family.

Mr. Colter, his family, and the third party still do not know how that unmailed letter could possibly have reached Winnipeg and get lodged in an unused suitcase. Mr. Colter never found the letter when he realized he had not mailed it. Have you any clues?

Horse Show Extraordinary Offers No Money, Trophies

By GRANT MACLEAN

Where will you find an annual horse show offering no prize money — not even trophies — yet attracting, this year, 614 horses and 235 exhibitors representing a dozen breeds and types? The answer is: Washington State University Horse Show held at Pullman.

The growing popularity of light horses has been only a little less spectacular than the decline of the heavy kind common to both Canada and United States.

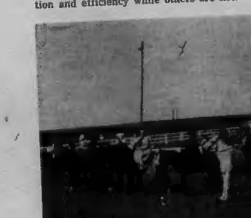

The growing popularity of light horses has been only a little less spectacular than the decline of the heavy kind common to both Canada and United States. Clydesdales, Percherons and Belgians which once did the heavy chugging on farms and streets will never return to former numbers but light horses, having re-established themselves in the hearts and lives of North American people, are not likely to be displaced.

Actually, the sturdy little horses whose task was to carry stock saddles on ranches and farms were never displaced; it was the pleasure horse which made the most phenomenal comeback.

More and more, people see the pleasure horse as filling a specific need in a highly mechanized age. A greasy gear is not an inspiring thing, regardless of its usefulness. Certainly, rural people and urban, men and women, young folks and older ones have discovered healthful pleasures and needed relaxation in saddle and driving stock of a dozen breeds.

WIDE VARIATIONS

A growing number of horse shows is one of the products of that revived interest in light horses. They vary widely — almost as widely as the shapes and colors of horses attending. Some are top-hat affairs while others display a barnyard character; some are big ones offering handsome prizes and trophies; and a few dare to operate with little or no money hurs. Moreover, some are conducted with imagination and efficiency while others are not.

Western Weekly Supplement — Wednesday, Aug. 29, 1962

--By Grant MacEwan

Horse shows are assured of a permanent place in the changing order and their importance prompts these observations about the "Model Horse Show" offering lessons for interested horsemen in both Canada and United States.

Of the many unique features about the Washington State University Horse Show held annually in May, the first is its setting right on the campus of an institution of higher learning. Although some critics will offer an academic sneer, this horsemen's gathering is considered by its sponsors as a proper project for University professors and students. Those directly responsible for the event state their purposes: to impart information about proper type and care, training and showing; and to train judges for light horse shows.

But there is something beyond these declared purposes. The annual horse show has become a valuable link between the State University and the public. And professors see the encouragement of interest in horses as having distinct cultural value. The new appreciation for horses, they say, is good for today's society.

OPEN JUDGING SCHOOL

A second feature of this all-brand exhibition is a judging school for all who choose to register for it. This year, 507 men, women and children from seven States and Canada signed up for the experience of making placings on certain hatter classes of Appaloosa, Quarter Horses, Morgans, Arabians, American Saddle Horses, Shetlands, Welsh and equitation events. While those enrolled in the school were making their placings and recording the results on cards for the purpose, the official judge was handling the class very much as he would do if he had the class entirely to himself. When student cards were gathered, he announced the official placing and gave reasons for the benefit of all. While the horse show ran for three days and two evenings, the school program ended after the second day and student winners were announced at a banquet.

Appropriately, the entire show and school program is planned to be educational. Every show or exhibition should be so planned. Those who enrolled for the school and made placings on the various classes.

Seafarers Plying Tricky Newfoundland Coasts Might Well Stare Pop-Eyed Through Binoculars at Ocean-Going House Bearing Full and Away at a Three-Knot Clip

House-owner Malcolm Rogers comes ashore after making fast at the end of trip with his sea-going home.

The houses, under tow by a fishing boat or two, are not victims of tidal waves or washed to sea by nature's fury. They are part of a province-sponsored project to move many of the island's 1,300 isolated fishing villages to more central locations where communities can play a more active part in the province's changing economy.

Relying on the only power available in the outports — human muscles and ingenuity — removal must be backed by all residents to get practical government blessing of $500 for each house moved. Although some old folks are reluctant to leave the villages founded by their forefathers, the attraction of better schools, modern power and water supplies, overland transport links and increased social facilities has already spurred 60 communities to move.

Physical problems of the move, which may affect a tenth of the province's population, brings out neighborly co-operation instilled by hundreds of years spent sharing dangers and wealth of untamed sea.

One by one the houses (stores and churches, too) are dragged down the beach, buoyed with oil drums, then floated along coast to new location. There, the old community, unit by unit, family by family, is absorbed into the modern world — another lonely outport becomes just a memory.

The World of Sport

Revival of 'Dead' Pastimes Could Provide Plenty of Fun

—By Tom Moore

Although once so popular that it occupied a major proportion of the space devoted to sporting news in the country's newspapers and magazines, harness racing became a very, very dead issue in Western Canada for many years. Only a few enthusiasts, fondly remembering the years of glory and grimly maintaining a few standard bred horses, kept it alive — if you could call the flickering spark of unhealthy life being alive.

However, the enthusiasts finally brought their sport back to the sporting page.

In the past few years, harness racing has grown once again into a popular sport. The flickering spark of life has been fanned into a fairly healthy flame and there are signs it may flare even higher.

HOW ABOUT MORE COMEBACKS?

All of which brings up the question — is there any hope for some of the other sports that, once followed with enthusiasm in this area, are now little more than a fond memory of oldsters who are not always too certain why they happened?

Take lacrosse.

It is officially Canada's national game — yet you can't blame youngsters for mistakenly believing that hockey holds that honor. After all, few of them have seen an actual lacrosse match. Yet there was a school lacrosse match, and in the day when, both in the country and in the cities, youngsters went to school with lacrosse sticks in their hands, shutting a ball back and forth as they walked, then exploded onto the school grounds during recess, noon-hour and "after four" in mass recess, noon-hour and "after four" in mass lacrosse battles that were reasonable facsimiles of the old Indian contest "la crosse" from which the sport developed.

But lacrosse died, and except for a brief revival of the "box" variety, designed to fit into the area of a hockey rink, during the 1930s, it is strictly a dead issue on the prairies of today. The game itself became too rough. Youngsters could no longer play the game on the streets when automobiles in profusion crowded them off. Crowding of towns and cities eliminated playing space and provided too many windows to be broken, and modern school buses are no places to be crowded with lacrosse sticks. It isn't likely to make a comeback.

Long distance "heel and toe" walking races have pretty well vanished. Who walks even short distances just for fun nowadays? But at one time grinds of 25 miles, 50 miles and more were common in the West.

NOVEL SPORTING ACTION

Old timers will remember mounted teams playing horse football with a leather ball that must have been about six feet in diameter, and others may recall the games of auto polo and others that brought together quartets of drivers in that brought together quartets of drivers in Model T Fords that had been provided with roll-over bars and all-the-way-round bumpers. They were probably the only automobiles in existence that could move sideways (when bumped hard by an opponent) and roll right over without injury to the straggled-in driver.

There are still some winter dog team races in northern areas — but gone are the days, when even Southern Alberta door-men who could mush from Calgary to Banff or trot 50 miles on a closed circuit at Lake Minnowanka or break trail through heavy snow on other long-distance courses.

Some shoe racing has gone with the sleds. There is one field, however, where there should be a good chance of a comeback for sports that youngsters of many years ago enjoyed to the full — and that is in the riding clubs that have developed throughout the prairies and in B.C. in recent years. Barrel racing has already been revived on a fairly large scale — or is "revived" the right word? It's a sort of now but easier variety of the old time stake racing which generally demanded more skill from the rider than the modern version.

THESE COULD BE ENJOYED

If you are one of the countless riding enthusiasts who now get together on weekends for little more than a ride or a session of "tag on horseback," why not, instead, run through a loosely organized program that includes many of the horseback games that the young and not-so-young enjoyed 30 or more years ago?

There was wrestling on horseback (no saddle), and there were stake races that demanded considerable skill in rounding the stakes. The military sport of tent-pecking desks (manned lances of some sort) and there was also revival by riding clubs but there was also potato racing that needed little equipment but considerable skill. You were armed with a pointed stick about four feet long, rode to the end of the course where a row of potatoes lay on the ground, speared your spud and returned to the starting line with it held triumphantly aloft — if you were lucky.

"Pony express" relay races tested the skill of the riders rather than speed of the horses — because there were two horses but only one saddle. Handicap the mounts by starting them from different distances based on results of straightaway running races and all the emphasis goes to skill of riders in making the change from one horse to another. To be good, you had to vault into the saddle bareback style — because no one ever wasted time cinching a saddle on tight and you didn't dare use the stirrups.

It was fun for old timers — and it could be lots of fun for young timers today. It's worth more than a cursory thought — and maybe, like harness racing, the old horse sports will make a real comeback.

With the Women

Maes Are Vulnerable, Too When Auction Sale Beckons

—By Marie MacDonald

I don't suppose there are too many people around these parts who haven't attended an auction of some sort. And many of us, no doubt, have some useless articles lying around to prove it.

My advice is not to go to an auction unless you intend to buy something, whether you want to or not.

The male population scoffs at the women and their sales and bargains but are equally, if not more, vulnerable at an auction sale. While they are not impressed with the department store "bargain counter," they literally lose their heads as they walk across the threshold of the Auction Mart.

The dollar amount of their folly depends largely on the personality and pep of the auctioneer. If the bidding is persistently naggingly, the professional auctioneer stops for a few seconds, puts his hands on his hips or wipes his brow in disgust. He spans the audience with a scornful eye and in some form or another tells them how cheap they are. "Where else can you get a Persian rug for $10.00?" he asks impatiently. He may then back up the challenge with a personal guarantee that he will gladly give the rug to anyone who can prove a better price. No danger of captivity and certainly the only one with half the design worn off and up for sale. Anyway, this invariably brings a weak boost to $11.00 from some guy who hasn't even got a house with a floor in it.

THESE GO QUICKLY

The tools always get through relatively easy and usually to the would-be home repair man. A hammer and screwdriver would put his house back into reasonable shape and fix the ironing board but alas, he wants an electric saw, compact welder or some such complicated hardware. How he will explain this to the little woman who wants a sewing machine, only a man will know.

The rug, the tools, the pickle jars and the unmatched furniture are all a part of the local auction. The fact that most of these same articles will appear at a later auction or end up in a secondhand store, is completely irrelevant at the time. The auction is undoubtedly a form of entertainment and very much a part of our way of life.

However, the amateur and the pickle jars are not qualified for the professional machinery and livestock auction sales. These are subversive operations and there seems to be a eerie psychic communication between the bidders and the auctioneer. Eyebrow twitching, wiping nose with sleeve, hand on hip, thumb in lapel are just some of the signals of price agreement. A newcomer wouldn't know where it began or ended or who purchased what.

NO WASTED ENERGY

The faces are inscrutable and the only noticeable movement is in the eyes — quick, furtive glances to the object being auctioned, the auctioneer and the next highest bidder.

Tense excitement permeates the air when the game arrives at a two party bid. The rest of the congregation waits the opponents silently and expectantly until the endurance test is over.

Finally, without any particular notice, it's all over and once again, a low murmur of conversation fills the air. This is followed by examination of the purchase and prideful chucking over the deal. And there are a few vital facts as somebody else walks away with their hopeful purchase.

For sheer bargaining and competition, which seems to run through all human veins, the auctions have it!

But be sure to bring your will power with you!

Big New Island of Ice Formed in Arctic Ocean

An area of approximately 200 square miles of ice shelf from the north coast of Ellesmere Island at the top of the continent has become detached and is floating freely in the Arctic Ocean near the Ellesmere shores. The break-away was reported by a RCAF reconnaissance aircraft.

Detachment of the ice shelf became apparent to crew members when they spotted a vehicle on a small island. The ice shelf had apparently drifted 30 miles from its original landfast position near the field research area of a U.S. party active in 1960.

Dr. Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith, Defence Research Board glaciologist reports, "Many new floating ice islands have resulted from the break-away. Four or five are of considerable size including one of approximately 60 square miles." The Ellesmere ice shelf is believed to be the birthplace of several other floating ice islands during the past 20 years. One, known as T-3, has been occupied intermittently by U.S. scientific teams during the past ten years. U.S.S.R. scientists established a station on a similar ice island in 1959.

Ice islands differ from other Arctic ocean ice floes in their unusual thickness and in their typically smooth ridge and furrow surface pattern. Their bulk and resistance to breakup make them ideal platforms for scientific research. Previous investigations have provided significant data on ice drift, meteorology, ocean depths and temperatures, and related scientific topics.

Of particular interest to DRB scientists is the eastward drift of one of the largest of these new ice islands. The others appear to be moving westward in accordance with the usually accepted drift pattern in this sector of the Arctic.

In order to maintain a continuous picture of the movement of the largest of the new ice islands, with the co-operation of the Polar Shelf Project of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, the Defence Research Board arranged to place a number of radar reflectors around this 13 x 8 mile island off Point Mose. Placed in position by means of a helicopter, the reflectors will facilitate tracking with airborne radar equipment. The radar records will be forwarded to Ottawa for study at DRB Headquarters and by scientists from other interested agencies.

Horse Show Offers No Money, Trophies

classes, agreed they were able to learn much about breed character and type. Still more could be learned from the explanatory talks by judges and demonstrations on showmanship, grooming and training.

Sportsmanship is not overlooked and the finest displays of good sportsmanship throughout the programs were recognized by awards.

As a model horse show, every event runs according to carefully planned schedules. Everything starts on time. Horsemen knew that the first class was called each morning to be judged at 7:45 and horses arriving late — even a few minutes late — would find the gate closed. Spectators liked it, knowing the program would start precisely on the minute and move along briskly with no gaps. Dr. M. E. Easman, Jr., Chairman of the Department of Animal Science at Washington State University and general manager of the horse show, insists there can be and should be precision and order in the conduct of all exhibition events.

TAKES ON DUAL CHARACTER

The first judging school was held in 1949, a two-day event without the regular horse show competitions. Two years later, the event took on its dual character and 185 horses from four States came to be judged. Since then the show and school have become steadily bigger. In 1961, it could be reported, 510 horses were presented before the judges and 375 men, women and children from six States and Canada took part in the judging school. In 1962, the horses totaled 614 and the school enrollment was 507.

Each year new classes are added and the recent show saw the first Pillion Costume class to be staged on the continent. Spectators loved it. On each horse a gentleman sat in the saddle while his lady occupied the back of the saddle. Pillion riding is thought to have originated in Spain and Spanish costumes will be considered appropriate in such classes. Also new were pony races modelled after standard-bred harness racing. And it was there at W.S.U. Horse Show that the Appaloosa Costume Class with authentic Indian costumes originated. It is the centre of Appaloosa country anyway, with the Palouse River flowing beside the City of Pullman.

In offering the event as a Model Horse Show, its manager, Dr. Easman, would repeat that new and novel contests should be brought to the fore if ever fundamental. The point is stressed by the fact that breed classes shown on the halliers occupy the biggest part of the entire program.

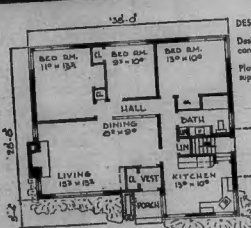

Performance, costume and novelty classes have their places in any horse show but as encouragement to breeders and education to horsemen, the halter classes must still rate uppermost in importance. Taking nothing away from training and showmanship and familiarity with the Rule Book, good horses with symmetry, grace, muscling, quality of bone, refinement of looks and other limb joints, well-shaped feet and true action are of fundamental importance.

Ivory Coast Turns from Magic to Manufacturing

Felix Houphouët-Boigny, president of the Republic of the Ivory Coast, is turning his country from magic to manufacturing.

Mr. Houphouët-Boigny is familiar with both the primitive and modern ways of life that must be his country.

He is a former tribal chief who was graduated first in his class from the medical school at Dakar, Senegal. Ironically, some of the President's constituents are witch doctors. Fetish worshippers and their witch doctors live in the dark forests of the interior, where ancient rituals persist. But on the coast a new automobile factory produces 60 cars a day, the National Geographic Society reports.

Other plants make flour, instant coffee, cocoa butter, bananas, cashew, soap, margarine, tobacco products, and cotton fabrics.

Industry, however, is a small part of an economy that is the richest of the former French territories in West Africa. The Ivory Coast is the world's third largest coffee producer and a leading cocoa grower. The fertile soil and wet climate stimulate the growth of bananas, rice, cotton, pineapples, all palms, and rubber used for car tires.

The Ivory Coast is unique in having developed a truly African middle class. Some 100,000 citizens own plantations. The Government has encouraged the trend; as a result, in just slightly larger than New Mexico, the Ivory Coast has a population of 3,500,000. The booming capital, Abidjan, is growing rapidly. It has 100,000 residents, doubling in the past 10 years.

Abidjan rises beside a blue lagoon set in the dark wet ground of a tropical rain forest. Sidewalk cafes and boulevards suggest Paris, but new ghettos, white hotels, apartment buildings, and supermarkets, recall Miami Beach.

Such a city was a nightmare for not captivated by the help of Marshall Plan funds, a canal was cut through the coastal barrier at Abidjan in 1913. Ships now sail directly into the large, protected refuge of Abidjan Lagoon, and Abidjan handles 1,200,000 tons of cargo a year.

Early history of the Ivory Coast is obscure. Its inhabitants, having no writing, left only legends. Because of its hostile coast and jungles, it was never assimilated into Arab Africa. European merchants may have touched the coast in the 16th century; by the end of the 18th it was often visited by French looking for slaves and ivory. Beginning in 1893 France made a series of treaties with well-established native monarchies, and gradually the country came under French protection. The Ivory Coast gained independence in August, 1960.

Though elephants have all but disappeared, craftsmen continue to carve the little ivory figurines that gave the nation its name.

Recipe Exchange

Mrs. K. M. Hall of Lloydminster recently asked for a good recipe for rhubarb wine. Here it is, supplied by a kind lady in Wetzakia, who does not want her name used.

Rhubarb Wine
2 lbs. rhubarb, 4 lbs. of sugar, 1/2 cup of yeast, 2 sliced lemons, handful of raisins, 1 gallon of boiling water.

Cut up rhubarb and put it in a large crock. Add gallon of boiling water and let it stand 24 hours. Strain off the liquid and discard the rhubarb. Pour liquid into the crock. Add sugar and lemons and stir until sugar dissolves. Add handful of raisins. Put yeast on a piece of paper and place on top of liquid. Let stand 14 days. Then strain and filter into jug. Do not seal jug, just set lid on but loosely. Allow wine to age for three months.

Red rhubarb gives wine a slightly pink tint, but green rhubarb makes wine that is just as nice. A drop or two of red food coloring will give the same tint. Wine should be stored at room temperature to age properly. I also leave wine in jug until all sediment has settled and then respouse for a much clearer wine.

This recipe may be doubled or even tripled successfully, only I use two packages of yeast when I triple the recipe.

Part Chops Hungarian
Here is another in the series of national dishes that Western Weekly Supplement readers are kindly supplying. It comes through kindness of Mrs. Harlene Shoemaker of Three Hills, Alberta.

Part chops delicately seasoned with paprika and cayenne seeds are different and tasty — the way the Hungarians like them. The preparation is simple and there is no long list of expensive ingredients.

Dig chops in flour and brown on both sides in a little hot fat. Season with salt and pepper. Then sprinkle with paprika until the chops are quite red. Seal the chops under the cover of the skillet and cook chops slowly until they are tender. Cover the skillet and sell reconditioned furnaces including wall trade and sell reconditioned furnaces including wall trade and sell reconditioned furnaces including wall trade.

It's Peach Time!
Every family has its favorite way of enjoying sweet and juicy D. C. Bennett peaches. Now, when the season is in full swing, you can get the best of both worlds. Buy a box of D. C. Bennett peaches. Cut in quarters rather than halves. They give up their stones quite easily you'll find, and make a festive finale to any meal even when served in the simplest possible way, sliced heapily in a pretty dish, sprinkled with sugar and served with a dollop of pouring cream or a sprig of lettuce.

Peach Ambrosia
2 cups fresh peach slices, 1 cup sliced banana, 1 1/2 cups fresh lemon juice, 2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup coconut.

Combine peaches, banana, lemon juice and sugar. Chill at least half an hour. Just before serving add coconut and spoon into sherbet glasses. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Peaches A La Russe
3 cups sliced fresh peaches, 1 cup dairy sour cream, 1 to 2 eggs, sugar, 1/2 cup grated lemon rind.

Divide sliced peaches evenly between 8 or 9 sherbet glasses. Combine sour cream with sugar and lemon rind and spoon over peaches. Additional peach slices may be used as garnish. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

THAT RAIL WITH

Editor, Western Weekly
Your Western Weekly Supplement is an interesting addition to our local news papers. We get ours through the Biggar Independent.

I am surprised that the Biggar railroads have not been corrected regarding the standard railway gauge mentioned in lines for your recent cover picture showing the White Pass and Yukon line. Standard gauge is 48 1/2 inches, not 44 inches as given in your lines. Only Russia and a few other countries use their rail more than 44 1/2 inches apart.

plumbing and other conveniences are indispensable. It is not cannot be found because of condition and the inability to pay the wages expected.

While our government is trying to correct these deplorable conditions I would like to appeal to middle-aged couples with comfortable homes, who have raised their families and, the more they pay their cost. Your reward, however, would be far greater than monetary returns. If you have love and compassion in your heart, and a desire to help someone in real need, give it a thought. Remember, "as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these..." and "Lay not up for yourself treasures on earth."

I appreciate your paper very much and would especially like to commend Mr. MacDonald on his patently honest article.

Sander, R.H. Nelson, B.C. I
Here is another true story.
Years ago we owned an old Collie dog named Mattie. One day a two-year-old boy got lost.
We were hunting frantically for him, fearing that he may have gone down around a dam that formed a small water reservoir some distance away from the house.

Sure enough just before dark,
I found the child, away down a lane, being pushed and shouldered along toward home by old Mattie dog.
We like your Supplement. It is O.K.

Combs Wins Championship

Drayton Valley and director has another champion! In the Canadian Amateur Championships held over the past weekend in Toronto, clever, hard-hitting Orvin Combs, 16, of Rocky Rapids won his first two titles to take the Bantamweight crown. Orvin fought in the 118 pound class. He was the only member of the Alberta team to win a title. The fights that young Combs won were described as mighty tough matches but the lad's courage and determination carried him through to victory.

In the first fight Orvin won over Jim Paul, a tough young fighter from N.W.T., who was fighting under the Saskatchewan banner. The final, winning victory for the local boxer was over Arny's Cal Omond, of Seattle, Ontario.

A coterie of seven boxers representing the Edmonton area left from International Airport on Thursday, with Mr. George Bougie, Mr. Jerry Ramsey and Mr. Gordon Russell. Edmonton men who are prominent amateur boxing promoters and trainers.

Orvin says his win was the result of teamwork on the part of the boys and the handlers who accompanied them to Toronto. Speaking over long distance phone Orvin expressed his appreciation of the cooperation he had from the Drayton Valley Athletic Association in sending him to the Championships Finals in Toronto.

Channel 5, sometime this coming Saturday afternoon will carry Orvin's winning fight on the "Sports Extra" program.

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

On Monday, September 17th the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic will return to Drayton Valley. As previously the Clinic will be held in Trans-Medlock High School Auditorium. Hours for the clinic will be from 9 p.m. till 4:30 and in the evening from 7 to 9.

Quote the last time the Red Cross Clinic was in town was 300, which was a near filling. This year it is hoped and expected that we will go over the top in filling our quota and will turn in a good report of ourselves. Would-be donors are reminded that if they have had jaundice in the past they are disqualified from giving blood.

Let's all get out and go over the top & our quota on September 17.

District Personalities

ALFRED A. GOTTSCHALK.

Mr. Alfred Gottschalk was born in Edmonton, and was raised on a farm in the Onoway district. He worked on the farm with time off to work on the Alaska highway which was just being built, until 1962 when he was stricken with polio.

His three years spent in the hospital were not wasted years as during that time he took an accounting course, which was sponsored by the Alberta Government and the Rehabilitation Association. His instruction in the course came from the University a few evenings a week. He was one of a class of five taking the course. He graduated from the course in 1962 and graduated from the hospital the same year still in his wheel chair. When he five came out of the hospital he tried to sell life insurance, from his wheel chair from house to house up and down the streets of Edmonton, but claims that as a life insurance salesman he wasn't to hot, and only tried it for a few months.

Then he came to work for Weddell Bros. when he knew in his Drayton Valley office and worked in their office for two years. In 1961 he was elected in the first of 1967. On the first of January 1968 he took an office in Mission Insurance Building and has operated a quite successful accounting business from there since then. Mr. Gottschalk keeps quite busy, with payroll work, bookkeeping, tax reports, accounting, etc.
